

UNIVERSITY OF BERGEN

22 JULY 2011 AT TEN: COMMEMORATION AND COMMITMENT

AN INTERNATIONAL DISCUSSION FORUM ON
COUNTERACTING EXTREME RIGHT TERRORISM

25–27 AUGUST 2021

Hosted by the University of Bergen research groups: “Literature and Religion”, “Transnational History and Cultural Encounters”, “Terms of Agreement: The Challenge of Muslim Inclusion”, and “MediaFutures: Research Centre for Responsible Media Technology and Innovation”

Co-organized in partnership with the Khalifa Ihler Institute and the Centre for Analysis of the Radical Right

Analysis of the Radical Right

The appalling attacks in Oslo and Utøya shocked the world and took the lives of 77 Norwegians, mostly children. They were killed on account of a transnational extreme right ideology, which was digitally broadcast on the day of the murders by the self-directed terrorist. The murders were, he said, “advertising” for his so-called manifesto. Norway’s darkest day destroyed lives and communities. It also raised acute questions about online radicalization, “broadband terrorism”, and the destructive power of a lone actor motivated by radical right extremism.

Ten years on, what lessons have been learned? What can societies and global organisations do better in order to stop extremist radicalisation and terrorist content, especially online? Drawing upon the pivotal “Christchurch Call to Eliminate Terrorist and Violent Extremist Content Online”, issued in the wake of a more recent lone actor attack murdering 51 innocents, this discussion forum will address these questions, while looking to the future for dynamic and workable solutions.

In hosting this event which features leading global stakeholders in the fight against terrorism and radical right extremism, the University of Bergen wishes to contribute to shaping those solutions.

This will be a hybrid event, combining on-campus elements in the University Aula with streaming and digital participation.

EVENT STRUCTURE

The first day is public and live streamed from the University Aula. It opens with welcome addresses from the Rector of the University of Bergen and the Vice Mayor of the City of Bergen. This is followed by an academic panel from University of Bergen researchers, a keynote lecture from the Khalifa Ihler Institute, a memorial event, a presentation on Norway's work to counteract extremist terrorism from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, and a review and reaffirmation of the principles underpinning the Christchurch Call from the New Zealand government. The press is encouraged to attend.

The second day will feature closed workshops led by the participating organisations and other invited delegates, focusing on the same questions: what have we learned since 22 July 2011, and what still needs to improve? How can we embed, and extend, the Christchurch Call – through specific initiatives, resources and collective action?

These workshops will continue into the third and final day, and a roundtable concludes this series of closed discussions. This will be followed by a summary and closing reflections on the event, where the press is again encouraged to attend. The day closes with the presentation of a working document towards future efforts, followed by a press conference. The working document will reaffirm those values assaulted by right-wing extremists, and outline steps to ensure that horrors like that of 22 July 2011 never happen again.

ABOUT THE ORGANISERS

Prof. Erik Tønning is Professor of British Literature and Culture in the Department of Foreign Languages, University of Bergen. As Director of the project “Modernism and Christianity” (2011-2014) he co-curated the exhibition “Art in Battle” (KODE art galleries 2015/16) on Nazi-era art in Norway, and edited the volume Modernism, Christianity, and Apocalypse (Brill 2015). He is currently co-Director of the research group “Literature and Religion”, and Director of a new interdisciplinary research project called “Inventing the Secular”. He is the main University of Bergen organiser of “22 of July at 10”.

Bjørn Ihler is the co-founder and director of the Khalifa Ihler Institute. Ihler is an internationally renowned expert in countering and preventing radicalization into violent extremism through the design of healthier communities both online and off-line. Ihler is also a member of the group Extremely Together working under the Kofi Annan Foundation to empower youth internationally to challenge violent extremism in their local communities and work against radicalisation across the globe. His most recent appointment as of July 2020 is as Chairperson of the Independent Advisory Committee of the Global Internet Forum to Counter Terrorism. Ihler has worked with and advised a range of local organizations, national governments and international institutions such as the European Union, the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe, and the United Nations to develop strategies to more effectively prevent radicalisation into violent extremism, and build more peaceful communities.

Prof. Matthew Feldman is a specialist on fascist ideology and radical-right extremism, and is the director of Centre for Analysis of the Radical Right. A longstanding feature of his work is a record of public engagement and policy-based impact, including briefings for various governmental bodies, reports for leading Non-Governmental Organizations, expert testimony, and several hundred media interviews. He is the author or editor of more than 20 books, including three book length studies and more than 40 peer-reviewed articles or academic book chapters. His second collection of essays, Politics, Intellectuals and Faith, appeared in spring 2020.

Dr Mette Wiggen is a specialist on the radical right in Scandinavia and a Senior Fellow at CARR. She is a Lecturer in the School of Politics and International Studies at the University of Leeds. She works with widening participation in Higher Education and is an advocate for refugees’- and non -traditional students’ access to university education. Her publications include “Rethinking Anti-Immigration Rhetoric after the Oslo and Utøya Terror Attacks” in New Political Science (2012,34:4, 585-604) and “Norway has failed to combat a Climate of Hate” in Will Allchorn, ed., Tracking the Rise of the Radical Right Globally (2019 Stuttgart, Ibdem Verlag. She is also a regular contributor to Open Democracy, Fair Observer and CARR.

Miriam Fanin is the research lead of the Khalifa Ihler Institute on far right extremism and terrorism. She holds a Master degree in Diplomacy and International cooperation, and a Bachelor in Intercultural Mediation. Her research and work focusing on hate-groups has guided her work on the Khalifa Ihler Hate-Map for which she is lead researcher.
